

FIRST INTERNATIONAL NANOTECHNOLOGY CONFERENCE ON COMMUNICATION AND COOPERATION

Speaker's Bio

Toru Nakayama

Toru Nakayama has been serving as Director of Nanotechnology and Materials Office since June, 2004. Mr. Nakayama's previous position, since 2001, was Executive Director for the US Japan Business Incubation Center in San Jose sponsored by JETRO to support Japanese start-up companies to plug into Silicon Valley business community. Mr. Nakayama has a master degree in Mechanical Engineering from Tokyo University. He joined Ministry of International Trade and Industry (MITI) in 1984. He has a long background with industrial policies in electronics, semiconductor and materials industries. As a visiting researcher, Mr. Nakayama studied the mechanism of technology transfer at the University of Southern California in 92/93 academic year, which he focused on the case of Silicon Valley.